

Normally the upper eyelid glides over the globe on a coating called the tear film composed of water, protein, mucins

